What Is Probable Cause During A Drug Search, And How Do California Courts Determine It?

In order to establish probable cause, the police need reasonable suspicion that a crime has been committed or is being committed, supported by articulable facts. In the context of a drug search, that might include observations of people coming and going from a home, people leaving a home with drugs on them, or a tip from an informant...

What Are The Immigration Consequences Of A Misdemeanor Versus A Felony DUI In California?

The immigration consequences of a DUI for non-citizens in California appear to be changing quickly. In the past, misdemeanor DUIs did not have much of an impact on immigration status. Today, it is advised to keep any and all DUI convictions off your record as a non-citizen, including those of a misdemeanor DUI...
